“To Die For: Self-Immolation as Micromobilization in South Korea”

Professor Kim, Hyojoung
California State University, Los Angeles

A number of protesters in Korea self-immolated in a political protest and labor union activism. How can we make sense of this radical political action that occurred in numbers? The author of the book analyzes the suicide notes left by the Korean self-immolators and provides a social movement theoretical understanding of the motivations for self-immolation from the very actors' perspective.
